SOUTH POINTE GIVES BACK TO LOCAL COMMUNITY

May 27, 2010, Warrensville Heights, Ohio: South Pointe Hospital, a Cleveland Clinic hospital, has partnered with Warrensville Heights Councilwoman Deborah Hill to host the second annual Neighbors Helping Neighbors community project.

Neighbors Helping Neighbors is a community service project aimed at improving the aesthetics of the Warrensville Heights community, while also providing an opportunity for South Pointe employees to extend their care and service through volunteering.

On Tuesday, June 8, from 7:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m., South Pointe Hospital volunteers will complete light maintenance – such as grass cutting, painting and other minor home exterior repairs – to at least five homes in the Eastwood neighborhood. South Pointe teamed up with the Eastwood Homeowners Association and the homeowners themselves to identify potential projects. A BBQ luncheon will follow at Eastwood Park for all neighbors and volunteers.

South Pointe employees support their community through volunteer work, participating in a variety of community efforts, from food drives, to homeless shelters, to fund-raising events for medical research, to environmental projects that enhance parks and other public spaces. South Pointe has served Warrensville Heights and the surrounding communities for over 50 years. Building and maintaining our local relationships are one way we're giving back to the people we serve.
